A DREADFUL fire occurred at the Hermitage on Tuesday and Wednesday. Canon Newton and his family fought the fire coming from Mr. Charles's house, but in the end, most of the night. On Wednesday it got beyond control in the pine swamps close by, and raged, the wind being high, and swept away fences and ornamental timber, stable, church and everything in its way. The study and dwelling house were burned around previously and so escaped. Loss about $1,500.

JAS. PRUDEN arrived from Beaver lake on Wednesday. Fires are raging both on the prairie and in the woods on the Beaver hills. No damage has been done in the settlement.

FULTON of East Edmonton has selected land for stock ranch at the lake. A rancher from Texas is expected to arrive here with a herd of 500 head of cattle. The bridge on Deep creek east of Ft. Saskatchewan on the Beaver lake trail, erected on local government account last year, has been blown down. R. Logan sowed grain on his farm at the lake over two weeks ago.

A VERY handsome map was received by the BULLERS on Monday's mail, showing the mounted police stations and patrols throughout the Northwest during the year 1888. It is a double size of the latest published, the provisional districts, of the several Indian treaties and the various Indian reserves, with populations of the latter. Besides the above, in giving the natural features of the country and the various old trails, as well as in the excellence of its execution this map is probably the best of all those published and circulated by the government.

ON Monday Messrs. Henderson and Knowles transferred a swarm of bees from a single hive in which they had wintered to a double hive of the latest patented.

The new hive would have been the best for the bees to winter in, but they were so prolific that the spring and summer bees could not be housed in the new hives made and so used the box in which the bees arrived from Niagara by express for one swarm. The process of moving them should not be the same as usual, with a good supply of old honey, and plenty of brood. There had been a considerable amount of new honey and pollen of great value brought in this spring already. The swarm removed had wintered in a shed with straw packed around until some time in February when it was taken into the house, but it is probable that had the weather been severe it would have perished. Another swarm was taken in a patent hive, given the same treatment did better than the one removed, but the third swarm—the original one brought from Niagara—although in a patent hive, perished from the loss of the queen, while with having plenty of honey. The three hives wintered by Mr. Knowles in a root cellar, wintered nicely, were strong, with plenty of honey in the spring and have been flying and working as vigorously as possible ever since they were set out on April 1st. It appears they are a larger number of bees than the best of the local and popular willow, which appear as soon as the snow leaves. From the abundance of these trees here they can work to advantage in the winter in Ontario, if the weather is fine. The experiment of Messrs. Henderson and Knowles was conclusively that bees can be imported successfully, that the country is suitable for them, inasmuch as they are remarkably prolific and can find abundance of honey, and that they can be wintered with out risk by the exercise of proper care. But at the same time that Messrs. Henderson and Knowles have been so successful, Mr. Inglis of Fort Saskatchewan who also imported a swarm last season has been unsuccessful, the swarm having died during the winter.

THE FISHERIES.

The government of Canada has decided to continue the temporary arrangement entered into whereby United States fishermen are allowed the privilege of Canadian waters contrary to the provisions of the treaty upon which Canada is supposed to rest her claims, on payment of a nominal license fee. This arrangement was instituted at the close of the negotiations for a new fishery treaty a year or two ago in the hope of avoiding trouble and tending to good feeling until the proposed treaty could be either ratified or rejected, in which latter case it was thoroughly understood the arrangement would cease. The proposed treaty was promptly rejected and measures of hostility threatened, but the arrangement of great value to United States fishermen and no doubt of some loss to those of Canada—was continued in force on the ground that the presidential election was in progress, and the "truce" was known there was a possibility that the treaty would yet be ratified. But the presidential election showed clearly that the people of the United States did not want the treaty ratified, and every moment that the temporary arrangement is continued after that decision of the agrarian in the dispute is certain known weakens the case of the party on the defensive, should the matter ever come to peaceful arbitration in the future. The excuse for this course offered by the Canadian government is that it is well in the first year of a new administration in the States to cultivate friendly relations as far as possible and that as no hostile move has been made on the part of the new administration it may be taken for granted that whatever may have been the pretensions upon which it rode into power it must be accepted as friendly until it has shown actual hostility. If Canada's rights are to be sacrificed to the United States when an administration is going out and when an administration is coming in, as these changes occur every four years and occupy to a greater or less degree the whole time between, it is natural to enquire, when are our rights to be maintained, or is the principle to be admitted that our rights wait on our enemies' pleasure? But almost the first act of the new administration in the United States—the proclamation declaring Bushong's men "hostile to us"—is so distinctly hostile to Canada in general and Canadian fishing interests in particular that the excuse offered by the Canadian government for its inexcusable action is only too evidently so false as to be absurd. It is high time that Canadians thoroughly understood their position on this question. It is a fire which may kindle a great war at any moment, and every citizen should understand as clearly as possible the responsibility which rests upon him in this connection. If we are to risk war in the maintenance of our rights let us brace ourselves for the event, or if the rights involved are not of sufficient importance to warrant the risk of maintaining them, let them be given up and the risk saved. The government of the country must be looked to to define its rights and guide its course in such matters. The present government of this country, while making all due capital out of the professed desire and intention to maintain the rights of the fishermen, is taking a course which while keeping the question open and the risk of war ever present is allowing our rights to lapse from non-exercise until their exercise would be so difficult that it would be impossible.

Some time ago the BULLETIN drew attention to a most unpleasant feature of the alleged immigration in the Northwest last year. Government immigration agent Graham of Winnipeg has the following to say on this subject in the latest report of the department of agriculture: "I gathered information that would lead me to believe that the clandestine plying between Vancouver, Victoria, San Francisco, and the American ports at the head of Puget Sound carried very little less than 10,000 emigrants, most of whom left Europe with the intention of remaining in British possessions." Is not this proof that the national interest imperatively demands immediate railway extension into the most attractive parts of the Northwest and as imperatively a land policy founded on the experience good and bad of the past 19 years in Manitoba and the Northwest and not on the whims and vagaries of officials whose ignorance of the circumstances is only equalled by their carelessness of the consequences of their perpetually changing regulations.

The Regina Journal is grieved because the BULLETIN does not choose to enter upon a buncombe crusade against separate schools in the Northwest. "If considers the BULLETIN's position—that non-sectarian schools are best, if practical—very weak. As to the weakness of the position taken, the Journal is commended to the following late delivery of the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, a gentleman in whose good judgment, absolute rectitude and great ability the Journal has such confidence that it accompanied the issue containing its articles on the BULLETIN with a very handsome engraving of the hon. gentleman in a fitting prize to its subscribers, and also published an editorial on his great merits: "Of course it is quite easy for the editor to sit in his office, it is quite easy for the clergyman in his study to settle questions according to fixed theories; but the public man in office or in opposition cannot settle a question according to fixed theories, but he has to consult the wisdom, not only the wisdom, but the passions and the prejudices of the people with whom he has to deal." All that the BULLETIN asks is to be shown that under present conditions a scheme of non-sectarian education for the Northwest is satisfactorily practicable; or that a separate school system must work greater injury to the general cause of education than would result from placing Protestants and Roman Catholics, against the will of either, under a single system.

Notwithstanding President Harrison's declaration against sealing in Behring's sea, the Walker's Rich has arrived at Victoria with 470 seals. Seven sealers spoken had a total of 1475 seals.

John McLean, who has been a Methodist missionary on the Blood reserve near Macleod for a number of years past, is about removing to a mission station of the same church to Assinella.

The Northwest land company, which includes the C. P. R. and Canadian government in this matter, still refuses to pay the taxes due by it to Northwest towns and school districts and has secured an injunction aial at the sale of lands for a homestead in Calgary.

The Canadian Western Central railway company has been incorporated by the British Columbia legislature to construct and operate a railway from the eastern boundary of the province to the northern terminus of the Equinault and Nanaimo railway on Vancouver island. This is presumably on the line of the at one time proposed Bute Inlet route of the C. P. R. from the Fraser past by way of Cariboo and the Chilistan plains to the Pacific coast at the Narrows between the mainland and Vancouver island, thence to the island and on to Victoria. The main line must touch at the town of Barkerville in Cariboo, or the immediate neighborhood thereof, or if that should be impracticable for the main line a branch to Barkerville must be constructed and operated. Construction will commence within two years. A road grant of $2,000 acres per mile constructed is to be made to lands having a twenty mile frontage on the railway alignment. Both sides of the line will be of government land of equal extent. The company is allowed timber, stone, gravel and north free from government lands and the lands granted shall remain exempt from local taxation so long as they remain absolutely in the company's hands. The capital stock and priority of the railway other than the land shall be exempt from taxation for ten years from the completion of the railway. The local government is evidently glad to look the subject through in the case of Victoria and Cariboo, as it is entirely opposed to the Vancouver company of the C. P. R. The total land grant is twenty miles square.

The Calgary Herald publishes an interview with J. T. Johnson of Hawkbury, Ontario, who is visiting Calgary. Mr. Johnson told the Herald that the train on which he came was "filled with our American cousins, and on the 23rd and 24th of March as the train passed through this fertile country they kept the car windows open, quaffing the summer air, amazed to see people plowing and sowing and cattle rolling fat feeding luxuriously on the plains. They never knew another 'what country is this, why we never heard of this place, there is nothing in this country's geography or the cyclopedia Americana about it.'"

The supplementary estimates of Canada for the current fiscal year ending June 30th, 1889, are to hand, and aggregate $2,097,167. This amount is to make up what the estimates and supplementary estimates voted at the parliamentary session of 1888, lacked of meeting the actual expenditure, during the year, and are not to be confounded with the supplementary estimates for 1889-1890 which have not yet been brought down. The estimates under notice comprise an item of $48,100 additional for immigration service, Prince Albert court house and jail $450, Lieutenant governor's residence Regina $500, telegraph station at Saddle Lake $95, reaping machine for Blood Indian reserve $400, P. W. M. Police service for year 1888-1890, rental allowance to Judge Rouleau from 1st April 1888 to 15th February 1887 $436, N. O. C. The Calgary Tribune publishes an item to the effect that there is not much likelihood of the railway from Lethbridge to the boundary being built this season.

The names of the jurymen in the Pisk murder case at Calgary are Gen. Modeste, Stephen Wilson, E. J. Latimer, O. E. Brown, J. Brodgen and J. A. Allen.

The Peace Press of April 2nd mentions that a number of families from Dakota and a party of ten from Michigan are seeking land near Carleton Place, Saskatchewan.

The Macleod Gazette says that an inspector of Mounted police went east recently to get married. On the wedding day his intended changed her mind and conferred a convent.

The Victoria B. C. Colonist has improved its appearance and added to its news capacity by publishing its large amount of telegraphic and part of its local matter in non-parallel.

The Medicine Hat Times mentions that the German colony established lately at Burnmore will now be numbered by 44 families. They bring in a considerable amount of stock.
